Read the passage and choose the best answers to the following questions.

Like many people across Asia, Jet Li, the Chinese kung fu movie star, was caught up in the real-life horror of the devastating tsunami that hit us on 26 December, 2004.

Li had come to the Maldives for a holiday with his wife Nina, two young daughters and nanny. Just after 10 that Sunday morning, he had been standing by the pool at the Four Seasons Hotel, ready to take his two excited little girls into the sea.

Then he noticed the water rising with terrifying speed. By the time he and the nanny had picked up Jane and Jada and turned to head back to the hotel, the water had reached their feet. Within seconds it rose to his waist, then his chin.

Li hoisted Jane onto his shoulders, but in the ensuing chaos lost his grip on Jada and the nanny. As they were all swept towards the hotel, he cried out for help. Four bystanders jumped into the water and grabbed Jada and the nanny before they went under. Li managed to make it back to the hotel and reunited with his wife.

1. What is the article mainly about?
 - A. Jet Li's horrible experience in escaping from tsunami
 - B. Saving the life of Jet Li, the number one kung fu movie star
 - C. Jet Li's pleasant vacation in the Maldives
 - D. Jet Li's family reunion after the tsunami

Pollution 'fights global warming'

Air pollution may be helping the fight against global warming by enhancing the ability of plants to absorb carbon dioxide, scientists say.

Since the 1960s, increased levels of atmospheric pollution have enhanced plant productivity by as much as one quarter, research has found.

In terms of carbon dioxide, this means that an extra 10% has been stored in the soil.

The research was published in the scientific journal, Nature.

It is a common assumption that plants grow best in clear sunny weather, but scientists say this is not always the case.

Research has shown that forests and crops can also thrive in hazy conditions because clouds and particles in the atmosphere scatter sun light so that it bathes more leaves.

1. There is now 10% more carbon dioxide in soil since the 1960s'.

A. True

B. False

C. Not Given
